

Dear Colleagues,

FIDIC COVID-19 Webinar series

Kick-starting the economy – lessons learned from what governments are doing around the world

Date: Wednesday 20 May 2020

Time: 12 noon to 1.30pm (CET)

Since the financial crisis in 2007/08, there has not been a crisis serious enough to warrant a wholesale economic stimulus . . . until now. Covid-19 is therefore not only one of the greatest health risks facing global citizens, it is also one of the most severe economic challenges the world has ever faced.

This webinar will explore the responses that have been provided by governments and international NGOs across the globe and will look at how these responses will impact the infrastructure industry going forward.

We have assembled an excellent line-up of expert speakers to discuss these issues, examine the global effect of government interventions and work out what this all means for global construction and infrastructure businesses. By sharing experiences from across the world, this webinar will offer help and guidance to firms facing the challenge of dealing with the current crisis.

Moderator: Nelson Ogunshakin, CEO, FIDIC

Invited speakers:

- Anthony Barry, Vice - President, FIDIC
- Richard Threlfall, Global Head of Infrastructure, KPMG, UK
- Mark Worrall, Chief Executive, Estates and Infrastructure Exchange, UK
- William Howard, FIDIC President, USA
- Graham Pontin, Head of Economic and Strategic Policy, FIDIC

We expect places to book up quickly for this webinar so please register as soon as possible at the link below.

With best wishes,

Dr Nelson Ogunshakin OBE
FIDIC Chief Executive
