Revolutionising Change for the Grid of the Future

Grid modernisation plays a crucial role in ASEAN’s sustainable and low carbon energy transition. Increased adoption of variable renewable energy and growing energy demand will require the grid to be resilient, smarter and more flexible. In this webinar, we will explore the technologies and strategies that will underpin the continued evolution of the power grid and how it can act as a catalyst for decarbonisation and renewable energy adoption.

About SIEW

The Singapore International Energy Week \(SIEW\) is an annual platform for energy professionals, policymakers and commentators to discuss and share best practices and solutions within the global energy space. The 15th edition of SIEW will be held from the 25-28 October 2022 in Singapore.

About the Energy Market Authority

The Energy Market Authority (EMA) is a statutory board under the Ministry of Trade and Industry. Our main goals are to ensure a reliable and secure energy supply, promote effective competition in the energy market and develop a dynamic energy sector in Singapore. Through our work, the EMA seeks to forge a progressive energy landscape for sustained growth. Please visit www.ema.gov.sg for more information.

About Future of the Grid

Set against a backdrop of increasing climate awareness and sustainability goals that are underpinning power sector development globally, grids must be modernised and adapted to cope with the evolving energy landscape. The increased penetration of variable renewable energy, e-mobility targets and electrification are changing demand, requiring flexibility and in Singapore's case greater regional interconnectivity. These challenges require innovative technologies, increased digitalisation and a regulatory framework that will enable the grid of the future. Click here to read more about the event.
