

SHAPING A Happy Healthy City

MINISTER'S FOREWORD

The Singapore that we live in today did not happen by chance, but through deliberate and meticulous long-term planning by generations of Singaporeans that came before us. Today, we carry on this tradition of thoughtful planning and careful stewardship of our land and resources for the benefit of our future generations.

Building on the conversations from the Long-Term Plan Review in 2021, we launched the Draft Master Plan 2025 public engagement exercise in October 2023 to gather feedback and views on how we can collectively reimagine the future of our homes, neighbourhoods, precincts, and nation.

We are rolling out a series of EDMs to share in greater detail the strategies and considerations behind the Draft Master Plan 2025. Each EDM will feature one of the four key themes of the Draft Master Plan 2025. This first EDM focuses on 'Shaping a Happy Healthy City'.

We hope this provides you with a fuller appreciation on how we plan and shape Singapore's future to meet a diverse range of needs, as well as some of the challenges we face. Please share your ideas and views with us, so that we can build a better Singapore together.

Desmond Lee
Minister for National Development

Visit our exhibitions @ The URA Centre!

- Central Area Recreation Master Plan Exhibition (till 30 Sept)
- Bukit Timah Turf City Exhibition (till 23 Oct)

Share your views to shape the future of Singapore!

Join us in shaping our city at go.gov.sg/URADraftMasterPlan

HIGHLIGHTS

FUTURE NEIGHBOURHOODS

Learn more about future liveable neighbourhoods in the Central Area and Bukit Timah Turf City, the Recreation Master Plan and the transformation of the Bidadari housing estate.

THINK PIECE

HOW CAN WE CREATE MORE INCLUSIVE AND ACTIVE NEIGHBOURHOODS?

From more diverse housing typologies to opening up more schools for play, A/Prof Ho Kong Chong shares ideas on creating more inclusive, active neighbourhoods.

FEATURES

REDEFINING CO-LOCATION

Architects share how Bukit Canberra and Sengkang Central are pushing the idea of co-location further.

DESIGNING MORE ENGAGING AND MULTI-FUNCTIONAL PUBLIC SPACES

Architects, developers and other stakeholders share stories and lessons behind Guoco Tower Urban Park and Punggol Green.