Course Overview

This one-day SGBC Industry Masterclass provides a foundational overview of the Green & Sustainable Finance ecosystem, tailored for professionals without a finance background. Participants will gain the essential knowledge to navigate and leverage sustainable finance opportunities within the built environment sector.

Course Focus

Beyond introducing Green & Sustainable Finance concepts - including how ESG metrics are integrated into traditional financial instruments - the course makes the topic directly relevant to the built environment sector. Key topics include sustainable finance taxonomies, green building certification frameworks, and the role of second-party opinion providers. These elements clarify how green buildings are defined and validated for accessing sustainable capital.

Learning Approach

Through real-world case studies, the course illustrates pathways for building owners and project managers to access green finance for new projects and transition finance for greening existing assets. The goal is to bridge the framework gap between finance and sustainability, while raising awareness of how global and regional taxonomies (e.g., EU, ASEAN) are increasingly aligned with leading green building certifications, simplifying access to sustainable funding.

Register now to gain a competitive edge in a rapidly evolving industry and position yourself at the forefront of sustainable finance in the built environment.
